

Massive Chinese 'longquan' celadon tripod censer, early Ming dynasty (1368-1644) Price: £2,200 subject to availability
POA

Massive Chinese 'longquan' celadon tripod censer, early Ming dynasty (1368-1644) the bulbous body covered in a dark green glaze and rising from three splayed animal and paw feet, with a short recessed neck and everted rim, decorated to the exterior with an incised design of pendant flowerheads against a diaper ground, the neck with an undulating wave pattern.

Dimensions:

Height: 37 cm. (14 1/2in.); height: 14.5cm. (5 3/4in.)

Condition:

See images

Provenance:

Major Edward Copleston Radcliffe (1898-1967), collection, 'A10' See British Museum

Origin Chinese

Period 16th Century

Condition Other

Material and Technique Stoneware with celadon glaze

Dimensions

Massive Chinese 'longquan' celadon tripod censer, early Ming dynasty (1368-1644) the bulbous body covered in a dark green glaze and rising from three splayed animal and paw feet, with a short recessed neck and everted rim, decorated to the exterior with an incised design of pendant flower heads against a diaper ground, the neck with an undulating wave pattern.
Dimensions: Height: 37 cm. (14 1/2in.); height: 14.5cm. (5 3/4in.)

Antique ref: W753