

Art Deco Diamond Circle Brooch, 4.42ct, Platinum & 18ct Gold, c.1920s POA

A beautifully balanced Art Deco brooch, made in Europe around the 1920s and set with a total of 4.42 carats of antique diamonds.

Designed as an open circle, the brooch is pavé-set with old European and single-cut diamonds, with two horizontal rows of baguette cuts anchoring the form.

The mix of cuts adds subtle depth and texture - a signature of the period's clean, architectural style.

The setting is platinum over 18 carat gold, a classic construction of the era that offers both durability and softness.

The diamonds are bright, well-matched, and full of character, graded H-I in colour and VS2 in clarity.

Measuring 3.5cm across and weighing 8.7 grams, the brooch is finely made and sits close to the fabric.

Elegant yet understated, this piece works as effortlessly on a cashmere jumper as it does on a silk lapel or winter coat.

It adds structure and light without drawing attention to itself - a detail that completes a look quietly.

A collector's piece, but one that's meant to be worn.

Available exclusively at ELTONS, Grays Antique Market, Mayfair, London.
