

1960s English 18ct Gold Leaf with Diamond Dew Drops Brooch POA

This beautifully made brooch from 1960s England is shaped as a soft, sculptural leaf - crafted in 18ct gold with a gentle curve that sits comfortably against the body.

The surface has a natural texture, catching the light with quiet depth. Three small diamonds are set along the stem like drops of water, reminiscent of dewdrops catching the morning light.

The brooch's graceful arc is not merely aesthetic; it is thoughtfully designed to contour the body, making it exceptionally wearable.

It curves just right to follow a collarbone or lapel, and could even be worn as a hair ornament.

There's a real sense of movement to it - like a leaf caught in a breeze - and it looks different from every angle.

Hallmarked for England and measuring 8cm by 4cm, Its timeless design ensures it remains as stylish today as it was over half a century ago.

Available exclusively at ELTONS, Grays Antique Market, Mayfair, London.
