Watch: Heuer Autavia 11630 P - Decompression Bezel
Stock Number: CHW5634
Price: £4250.00

An exceptional vintage Heuer from the Autavia range, the 11630 P dating back to as early as 1972! Left as original as we can leave it this Heuer is in excellent working order having passed through our workshop its running at +6 seconds per day and that is quite something for a Chronograph of this age.

Retaining all those original edges we can see the case back has had a polish at some stage but we can also safely say that dial, hands and bezel are original. Many of these have cracked bezels or are the reverse with black sub dials making this version even more sought after. Beautifully and naturally aged this model should not be mistaken for those that are similar from the Autavia range.

Orange hands and accents over a black dial with white sub dials the date is aperture to 6.

39mm stainless steel case this automatic watch operates from a Buren Calibre 12 movement.

Originally created to cater for the diving industry the diver by aligning the orange arrow on the bezel with the orange minute hand, the diver can see the amount of time that they have at any chosen depth without requiring decompression.

A fine example that is in stock now.
