This Omega 2400 comes with a cool story. Made exclusively by Omega for the people and in some cases the military in Sweden. On the case back it states "Antimagnetisk, Vattentät, Stotskyddad" this is the Suveran which is Swedish for Sovereign.

These watches were made for the Swedish people to buy to assist in the war effort by bringing in urgently required funds. Some were also issued to various ranks in the military. This one as per the serial was produced in 1944.

These manual wind watches were powered by the 30T2 Caliber movement. This one having just passed through our watchmaker.

35mm stainless steel case with steel Omega crown fitted to a generic black leather strap and steel buckle.

The dial clearly shows some battle scars from over the years and its long life, black but with aging and pitting across it giving a unique patina. Original hands that have a beautiful almost burnt colour to them as do the smudgy creamy coloured arabic numeral hour markers. The dial is clearly marked in places which can be expected from a light dial that is over 80 years old.

Our view - What a beautiful functioning piece of history, A watch with a story, we love this one!
