Jaeger-LeCoultre Club Automatic | 1970s Barrel Case | Striped Dial

Few watches capture the 1970s aesthetic better than the Jaeger-LeCoultre Club Automatic. With its bold barrel-shaped case and striking striped dial, this watch is unapologetically retro and full of character.

Key Features

Era: 1970s

Case Size: 39mm (lug-to-lug) x 37.5mm (across), stainless steel barrel case

Dial: Striped grey, silver, and brown pattern – a true 70s design statement

Functions: Day and Date, operating correctly

Movement: Automatic – serviced, running at approx. +40 seconds/day (typical for this model when new)

Crystal: Acrylic, clear with light signs of age

Strap: Generic maroon leather strap with steel buckle

Condition

Case: Very good with light age-related marks, unpolished to preserve originality

Dial: Excellent – vivid striped tones, unique to the 1970s

Crystal: Clear with minor surface marks

Strap: Brand new, unworn

Movement: Recently serviced, running reliably though not to modern chronometer standards

Our View

This Jaeger-LeCoultre Club Automatic is all about style and personality. The oversized barrel case and playful striped dial embody the spirit of 70s watch design—quirky, bold, and fun. While not the most precise timekeeper, it delivers charm and collectability in equal measure. A perfect vintage talking piece with a fresh service, 12-month guarantee, and insured next-day delivery (collection also available in Mayfair, London).
