

Diamond D
£4,500.00

A superb example of early-20th-century glamour, this convertible Art Deco double-clip brooch is crafted in platinum with white-gold fittings and showcases the bold geometry and symmetry characteristic of the 1920s–30s.

Comprising two matching clips joined by a removable frame, the design offers exceptional versatility — worn together as a single brooch or separately as a pair of elegant clips. Each section is set with five transitional-cut diamonds of VS clarity and H/I colour, arranged in an architectural openwork pattern enhanced by delicate milgrain detailing.

The bright sparkle of the diamonds contrasts beautifully with the cool sheen of platinum, creating a refined statement of vintage sophistication. A superbly engineered piece that captures the innovation and elegance of the Art Deco period.

Details:

Era: c.1920s–30s

Metal: Platinum with white-gold fittings (tested)

Gemstones: 5 Transitional-cut Diamonds, approx. VS clarity, H/I colour

Style: Convertible double-clip design — may be worn as one brooch or two clips

Condition: Excellent vintage condition; original fittings and mechanisms intact

A finely crafted and versatile Art Deco jewel — timeless, architectural, and effortlessly chic.

https://www.spectrumantiques.com/products/art-deco-platinum-double-clip-brooch

Origin	British
Period	1920s
Style	Art Deco
Materials	Platinum
Main Gemstone	Diamond
Main Gemstone Cut	Transition Cut

Antique ref: SAO120