An exceptional Edwardian gate link bracelet, c.1905, crafted in prestigious 15ct yellow gold. This refined piece features a traditional three-row gate construction, centering three decorative panels set with a sparkling transitional-cut diamond and two vibrant cornflower-blue sapphires.

The use of 15ct gold—a fineness discontinued in 1932—marks this as a superior example of British antique craftsmanship. The stones are elegantly square-set, creating a clean, geometric focal point that balances the fluid movement of the links. Secured by an integrated box clasp with a crisp '15ct' stamp and an original safety chain, this bracelet is a rare and sophisticated heirloom piece for the discerning collector.
