Oris Regulator 7473 Automatic 35mm Champagne Dial

Oris Regulator 7473 – A wonderfully distinctive and increasingly collectible automatic wristwatch from the 1990s, showcasing Oris' unique approach to displaying time. Unlike a conventional watch dial, the Regulator separates the hours, minutes and seconds into individual displays, creating a striking and highly functional layout that immediately stands out from traditional timepieces.

Powered by the Oris 649 automatic movement, based on the proven ETA 2836-2 architecture and enhanced with Oris' regulator module, this example features a beautiful champagne dial, triple-tier bezel design and original stainless steel bracelet. A fascinating watch that combines technical interest, elegant styling and everyday wearability.

Our View

The Regulator collection remains one of the most interesting chapters in Oris' history. Rather than simply producing another traditional three-hand watch, Oris embraced the regulator layout historically used by master clockmakers, creating a watch that is both highly distinctive and genuinely practical.

What makes this example particularly appealing is the beautiful champagne dial, which elevates the watch beyond a technical novelty and turns it into an elegant dress watch. Combined with the triple-tier bezel and quirky dial architecture, it offers a level of individuality rarely found at this price point.
