

Opal and Diamond Stud Earrings | Old-Cut Cluster with Platinum Top | English c.1910s POA

A refined pair of British stud earrings from the 1910s, set with glowing Australian opals surrounded by a halo of old-cut diamonds.

The stones are mounted in platinum over 18ct gold, a classic Edwardian-era construction, with softly domed settings that sit neatly on the ear.

Each opal shows subtle play-of-colour, framed by approximately 0.7 carats of antique-cut diamonds that add gentle sparkle without overpowering the design.

The cluster layout is balanced and timeless, with a diameter of around 1cm, just enough presence without excess.
