

Ruby and Diamond Cluster Ring | Platinum Petals | English c.1930s POA

This charming 1950s ring is a brilliant example of mid-20th century floral design, crafted in 18ct gold with a platinum-topped setting.

At its heart sits a vivid ruby, encircled by a double halo of old-cut diamonds that radiate outward like the petals of a stylised flower.

The scalloped platinum setting catches the light beautifully, offering contrast and shimmer against the warmth of the gold band.

It's joyful yet refined, bold enough to be a statement, but with a softness that keeps it elegant.
