

Niello Link Bracelet | Triple-Bar Design | European c.1885 POA

This distinctive triple-bar niello bracelet, crafted in Continental Europe around 1885, blends exceptional craftsmanship with enduring style.

Formed in silver, it features alternating polished and gilt-accented panels, each link detailed with crisp, geometric niello work, a traditional inlay technique that creates bold contrast and intricate surface patterning.

Its articulated construction allows it to move fluidly with the wrist, while the integrated clasp preserves a clean, uninterrupted silhouette.

The interplay of darkened silver and warm highlights establishes a bold, graphic rhythm, rooted in 19th-century craftsmanship, yet strikingly modern in feel.

Worn alone or stacked, it commands quiet attention: a refined and wearable example of late 19th-century Continental design.
