

Enamel Butterfly Brooch by David-Andersen | Silver Gilt | Norway
c.1950s
POA

A striking mid-century enamel brooch by renowned Norwegian maker David-Andersen, crafted in sterling silver with a rich gilt finish.

This butterfly design showcases beautifully shaded enamel in tones of emerald green, golden yellow, and soft brown, with painterly transitions across the wings.

The detailing is crisp and symmetrical, capturing the elegance of Scandinavian design and the natural world.

Fully hallmarked DAVID-ANDERSEN NORWAY and STERLING 925S, this piece dates to the 1950s and represents one of the firm's most collectable forms.

Measuring 6cm across, it has real presence when worn—vivid, expressive, and unmistakably mid-century.

In excellent condition and a standout example of David-Andersen's enamel work, this is both wearable and highly collectible.

Available exclusively at ELTONS, Grays Antique Market, Mayfair, London.
