

Liberty & Co Art Nouveau Enamel Silver Picture Pendant | c.1910 POA

A beautiful example of Liberty's Art Nouveau design language, this silver and enamel pendant was made in England around 1910 and designed to hold a miniature picture or keepsake.

Crafted in silver and richly enamelled in tones of peacock blue, emerald green, and soft amber, it showcases the distinctive Liberty palette that still resonates through the brand's iconic prints and design legacy.

The frame is decorated with stylised leaf motifs and subtle organic curves, typical of the early 20th-century aesthetic known in Britain as the "Liberty style" - their take on continental Art Nouveau.

At 6cm by 4cm, it's a striking piece that balances presence with delicacy.

The open centre gives it a feeling of lightness, making it beautifully wearable for today - bold enough to stand alone, or layered with fine chains for contrast.

A rare surviving example from Liberty's golden era, it remains as individual and refined as the person who wears it.

Available exclusively at ELTONS, Grays Antique Market, Mayfair, London.
